MADRAS RACES

FINE DISPLAY BY KEEP SMILIN'

WELL-BACKED HORSES GO UNDER

MADRAS, Dec. 1.

There were several features which made the week-end races at Guindy interesting. There were tremendous elections in a couple of races, but there were also striking defeats which, not unlike the sport, More than all those the eclipse of heavily backed horses in all but two instances only served to show that the only reliable tiling in racing is there are no certainties.

Keep Smilin', who along with Injustice and Prince Dara, were recently acquired by the club-and-stable partnership of Messrs. G. E. Hoover and R. Booth from Mrs. Justice, particularly had his chances ranked as one of the best sprinters in his class here in setting at distance the sprinting powers of Sailing and Winking Blue Style, a good horse, the Five-Year-Old son of Lord Bloxed gave a versatile display, incidentally doing a very good turn for the punters (actions were helped themselves freely in the long run. More should be heard of this chestnut during the season Blacky, who last been with him, but the first three horse should have put up a better show than he did, and he not stepped away from his course. This one should surely make amends in the near future.

The biggest disappointment of the afternoon was Sea Plane, who failed to bind his spells by a head. The chestnut mare carried tons of money on her back and was the shortest priced horse of the day. Slow to take her feet, she was forced at the rear, which evidently took away her reserve. Perhaps, racing in the middle near the mare may not have lasted, period.

The competitors were keen in the races giving the Fillies' Trophy, Keep Smilin' Sailing Rainbow, in which, the winners scored by a neck or a short head. In Cantrell back a terrific challenge emanated from Bobby in the form, Shek' attempt, while Shekker revelled in the keen battle. The two horses ran so closely that neither the judge's verdict cleared the suspense.

Trotter Insanity settled the long-retired winners in Rahman Hamid and Bhagwalia.

The Treble Tote returned Rs. 1,300 on ticket's nominating Prince Pathan, Keep Smilin' and Sailing Hamid. The Double Tote said Rs. 60 on the Keep Smilin'-Shakespeare combination and the Jacks' Five Place Pool? Rs. 24.
